

PRESIDENT'S END OF YEAR MESSAGE

2013 has been a busy and successful year for European Studies in Australia and the region. Highlights showcasing the quality, breadth and depth of work undertaken have included the publication of two quality editions of the Australian and New Zealand Journal of European Studies (ANZJES), a joint cooperation between the European Studies Association of Australia and New Zealand. The 20th anniversary of the CESAA Essay Competition was held in 2013. CESAA participated in a number of international conferences, such as the EUSA AP conference "Reassessing the EU-Asia pacific relationship in the context of the EU crisis", held on 17-18 May 2013 at the University of Macau in Macau, in which many European Studies Presidents including CESAA's participated, and the well-attended September Canberra-based conference and graduate workshop 'Smart, Sustainable And Inclusive': Researching the EU from Australia and New Zealand jointly convened by the four EU Centres at the Australian National University, Monash University, RMIT University and the New Zealand EU Centres Network. 2014 will build on this work with the CESAA-convened 2014 EUSA AP conference EU in the Shadow of Asia? Changing Relationships between the EU and the Asia Pacific, which will be held in May.

CESAA NEWS

2014 European Union Studies Association Asia Pacific Conference — EU in the Shadow of Asia? Changing Relationships between the EU and the Asia Pacific

Planning is under way for the 2014 EUSA AP conference, scheduled for 1–2 May 2014. The conference will focus on the changing relationship between the EU and the Asia Pacific. The discussion on the emerging powers of Asia is well established. However, there have been few Asia Pacific platforms where academics can present their research into how the concept of the coming century being one which pivots around Asia impacts on Asia Pacific – EU relations.

The conference will be hosted by CESAA with the support of the EU Centre at RMIT which will provide a venue for the event. There is some support available for local costs for attendees presenting papers.

The conference website can be accessed at:

Report

Louis Brennan & Philomena Murray, Dissemination Report of the Jean Monnet International Symposium Drivers of Regionalism and Integration in Europe and Asia: Comparative Perspectives

As part of the project 'Drivers of Regionalism and Integration in Europe and Asia: Comparative Perspectives', a three-day Symposium was held at Trinity College Dublin in July 2013, bringing together scholars, analysts, policy-makers and the wider community to explore and debate how and why regional bodies such as the European Union and ASEAN are formed and sustained. Participants in the symposium critically examined the drivers of regionalism and integration in Europe and Asia and developed comparative perspectives through the examination of how and why regional bodies such as the European Union (EU) and the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) are formed and sustained over time.

2014 European Union Studies Association Asia Pacific Conference — EU in the Shadow of Asia? Changing Relationships between the EU and the Asia Pacific

Closing date: 31 December 2014

Location: Melbourne

The 2014 EUSA AP conference, scheduled for 1–2 May 2014 will focus on the changing relationship between the EU and the Asia Pacific. The discussion on the emerging powers of Asia is well established. However, there have been few Asia Pacific platforms where academics can present their research into how the concept of the coming century being one which pivots around Asia impacts on Asia Pacific – EU relations.

The following six sub-themes will be investigated from both, an European and an Asia Pacific perspective:

- What is changing and what remains unchanged in relations between the EU and the Asia Pacific?
- How has a focus on Asia impacted other countries policies towards the EU; and the EU's policies to other regions?
- How do financial and membership crises impact on the relationships between the EU and the Asia Pacific?
- What impacts do various forms of regional integration in Asia have on EU relations with the region?
- How do perceptions of 'self' and 'others' and concepts of identity influence understandings, political and economic interactions between EU and Asia Pacific?

- Do expat/migrant communities help to facilitate understanding between regions?

This conference will be multidisciplinary in focus and applications from a wide range of fields are encouraged to develop a deeper understanding of the complexities of the relationship, and to understand the broad range of areas that can be impacted by international political and economic issues.

The conference website can be accessed at:

The 1st European Conference on Teaching and Learning Politics, International Relations and European Studies

Closing date: 16 December 2013

Location: Maastricht, Holland

In order to allow for an intense exchange about various aspects of teaching and learning, the conference set-up will integrate a variety of activities.

Contributions are welcome on any topic of teaching and learning, participants are encouraged to consider the following questions:

In what respect is there a 'new' generation of students? In what manner are current and future students different: in terms of their expectations, needs, and demands?

- How to react and integrate the demand for skills and employability in everyday teaching?
- Who should ensure students' motivation, and how can this be achieved?
- How to remember what it means to learn ourselves?
- How to harness the potential for active engagement in Politics and International Relations teaching?
- What role for Politics, International Relations or European Studies to provide counter-balance to increasing disenchantment with politics among younger generations of citizens?

Submissions should be sent to tlcmaastricht2014@gmail.com.

Call for publications — Political Perspectives, University of Manchester postgraduate journal

Closing date: 22 December 2013

Submissions are invited from research students for the special issue “EU after the Crisis?” for the peer-reviewed University of Manchester postgraduate journal Political Perspectives.

Political Perspectives is an electronic journal aimed at providing postgraduate research with an arena for scholarly debate in the field of politics. In doing so, it encompasses the areas of political theory, public policy, governance, comparative European politics and international politics. The journal is foremost committed to giving constructive feedback on manuscripts and providing experience of the publishing process for aspiring academics.

The special issue aims at contributing to academic debate on the consequences of the crisis for the European integration. In particular, it is dedicated to reflections on and contributions to contemporary EU research on economic government, fiscal and political integration, as far as they pertain to the shaken confidence in the future of the European project and the Euro. Within this context, the journal welcomes papers covering the topics of existing EU policies, European Institutions, EU and (sub-) national level decision-making as well as conceptual approaches to EU integration. Contribution thus might consider the following or related questions:

- Political economics of crisis in Europe
- New dynamics in EU member states
- The role of the EU and its institutions in crisis management
- Energy and security policy in Europe
- Sub-national governance in Europe
- The EU’s external relations and foreign policy
- New insights into the EU’s institutions
- New ways to conceptualise the EU

Submissions will be peer reviewed by at least two academics with relevant research interests providing authors with extensive feedback. Submissions should be between 6,000 to 8,000 words including references and be accompanied with the name of the author, institutional affiliation, and current contact details.

Authors are asked to submit their articles by 22 December 2013 to: ssp02al@gold.ac.uk.

The journal can be accessed at:

Ninth Annual Graduate Student Conference on the European Union—Brussels as Usual?: Politics and Policy in the EU

Location: Pittsburgh, USA

In many ways, the EU appears to be in a period of transition: recovering from the financial crisis, continuing to implement the Lisbon Treaty’s provisions, and awaiting a new set of European elections. Have these developments produced change in the EU's politics and policies, or has it been Brussels as usual?

The University of Pittsburgh's library system houses one of the largest and most complete archives of primary and secondary documents on the European Union, dating back to the beginnings of the European Coal and Steel Community. Conference presenters are given access to the archive for research while in Pittsburgh.

The 1st European Conference on Teaching and Learning Politics, International Relations and European Studies

Location: Maastricht

This event, jointly organised by the British International Study Association, the European Consortium for Political Research, the Political Studies Association and the University Association for Contemporary European Studies, asks what it means to teach Politics, International Relations (IR), or European Studies (ES) to the next generation of students, what it should mean for future students to learn Politics, International Relations, or European Studies? What are the opportunities of educating the next generation of a knowledge society? But also what challenges will Politics, IR and ES instructors encounter, considering the overburdening availability of (electronic) information and the growing demand for skills-based education? Next to those global trends in higher education, there are also specific features of European Higher Education that need careful consideration: the Bologna process, the employability discourse, or the raising concern with fees to mention just a few.

Erasmus+

Closing date: 16 March–1 October 2014 (depending on program)

Erasmus+, the new EU program for Education, Training and Youth, commencing in January 2014, brings together seven existing EU program in these fields and, for the first time, provides support for Sport. As an integrated programme, Erasmus+ offers more opportunities for cooperation across the Education, Training and Youth sectors and is easier to access than its predecessors, with simplified funding rules. The program combines all current schemes for education, training, youth and sport, including the Lifelong Learning Programme (Erasmus, Leonardo da Vinci, Comenius, Grundtvig), Youth in Action and five international cooperation programmes (Erasmus Mundus, Tempus, Alfa, Edulink and the programme for cooperation with industrialised countries). Erasmus+ has three main targets: two-thirds of its budget is allocated to learning opportunities abroad for individuals, within the EU and beyond; the remainder will support partnerships between educational institutions, youth organisations, businesses, local and regional authorities and NGOs, as well as reforms to modernise education and training and to promote innovation, entrepreneurship and employability.

Please note: As a general rule, organisations participating in Erasmus+ projects must be established in a Programme Country. However, some Actions are also open to participating organisations from Partner Countries such as Australia. The specific conditions for participating in an Erasmus+ project depend on the type of Action supported by the Programme. In general terms, the Programme is open to any organisation active in the fields of education, training, youth or sport. Several Actions are also open to the participation of other players in the labour markets. For more details, please consult the Erasmus+ Programme Guide.

Editorial OPPORTUNITIES

Call for Editors – JCMS: Journal of Common Market Studies Annual Review of the EU

Closing date: 31 January 2014

UACES and Wiley invite applications for the role of Editor of the JCMS Annual Review.

The Annual Review, produced in association with JCMS covers the key developments in the European Union, its member states, and acceding/applicant countries.

The Annual Review is published as an issue of JCMS and therefore has very wide, global circulation online. It is also available for purchase as a self-standing book. The content of the Annual Review varies from year to year to reflect ongoing developments inside and outside the EU and to maximise the impact of the Annual Review.

Further information is available at:
<<http://www.uaces.org/publications/jcms/call/>>

Call for Editors – JCMS: Journal of Common Market Studies

Closing date: 9 May 2014

UACES and Wiley invite applications for the role of Editors of the JCMS.

UACES and Wiley are seeking to appoint an interdisciplinary editorial team of senior scholars of international standing, that have clear strategic objectives and a credible delivery plan for their realisation.

The Journal is the leading interdisciplinary, international journal for research and scholarship in the field of European integration. It covers the full range of EU activities, as well as theoretical aspects of integration including comparative regionalism. The main disciplinary focus of the Journal is on political science and economics, but with important contributions from a range of other disciplines such as law, social policy and history.

The new Editorial team would commence work in January 2015.
